PROJECT ZERO:

In this project I have for separate html pages, each unique in their own form. The main source is my first webpage and has three different things I like such as tacos, ice cream, and the dogs I want. In the ice cream tag, there is an ordered list of the ice cream flavors I like. In the styles.css file it describes the specifics for the pages. For instance the background color of the pages to be blue. It also consists of a specific class and id for the specificity to increase. The file also includes a media query and a Bootstrap section describing the font.